

The Real Power is in the Streets!

Join the March at Third and Michigan Avenue, Daily at 4pm.

On Friday morning, June 5th, GLWA security at the wastewater treatment plant on west Jefferson stood ready to act on an email.

We have been told that a person in top GLWA management sent an email to security to search employees as they left work.

So, at 7:30 am, as our coworkers left work, they were stopped, and their cars searched by armed security. They had just finished a twelve-and-a-half-hour shift.

GLWA had no good reason to search employees or their cars. Its just another example of the mistreatment and disrespect employees have come to expect from GLWA top management. Its why there's a movement serving justice in the streets.

We expect to be treated with courtesy and respect. Surprise searches of vehicles by armed security is not the way you treat employees.

Sue McCormick, Bill Wolfson, W Barnett Jones and Navid Mehram owe employees a public apology condemning the harassment of employees.

This should never happen again.

We demand to know what really happened.

The executive team member that would abuse their position and order employees to be searched should resign immediately.

Why would you subject employees to a surprise confrontation with armed security demanding to search vehicles on the way out of work after a twelve-and-a-half-hour shift?

During a national mass movement demanding an end to racist police harassment and violence?

The real power is in the streets. Any justice we receive will be won by publicly exposing this incident and demanding justice.

As a majority black workforce, we aren't new to standing up to this kind of racist treatment.

Every day we march for justice demonstrates our determination for a substantial change. Its time to join the movement, build and defend the protest marches.

Join the daily marches and speak out about our fight for fair treatment on the job.
