Hazen and Sawyer	Tiffany Nation	tnation@hazenandsawyer.com	Hazen and Sawyer did assess the subject RFP when it was released. While our firm does have expertise consistent with the scope of services contained in the RFP referenced above, we were unable to pull in a Design Build partner. Also at the time of the RFP release, we wanted to continue focusing our resources on other strategic pursuits and projects with GLWA.
Shaltz Automation	Trish Mousseau	trishm@shaltzautomation.com	Shaltz Automation did not supply a bid because we are a component supplier and work with leading global manufacturers. Our scope of supply is at the component level and not at the installation and commissioning level. We attend tour and review packages and try to promote our brands to the engineering firms and water/waste water OEM's who typically win these bids. One of our major manufacturers, Mitsubishi Electric Automation, is heavily involved in water/waste water on the west side of the state of Michigan and they have a 'Services' portfolio. I have a meeting ... to discuss this program and feel it could be a complete, turnkey solution that we could provide in the near future.

Emerson Automated Solutions	Raymond Card	Raymond.Card@emerson.com	Emerson bid this project as a subcontractor. We could not bid as a prime contractor due to the terms and conditions.
Weiss Construction Company, LLC	Joe P. Mulville	jmulville@weiss-construction.com	We understand the project work scope was entirely electrical related and would afford us no opportunities to self-perform mechanical or civil construction trade work. As such, we decided to pass on the opportunity.
OHM Advisors	Erin Valmont	Erin.valmont@ohm-advisors.com	We had downloaded the RFP to see if it was something we might partner with another firm on. After reviewing, we decided it wasn't a good match.
Black & Veatch Ltd. of Michigan	David Koch	KochDS@bv.com	We had a general interest in understanding the extent of what was planned under the project, as related to some other interests we have with GLWA, so viewed the documents; however, were not in a position to invest in developing a proposal.
Dodge Data & Analytics	Elaine Wilson	Elaine.Wilson@construction.com	We are a plan room.
